

Increased competition is good for consumers. Two satellite companies is not enough. Finally a viable 3rd company comes along, one who actually offers the best product of all. But if this sale goes through they're done. They'll be out of business just as they were starting to gather some momentum.